

Lundwall Communications Inc.

Award-winning graphic design. Great writing. Industry expertise. The hopelessly alluring scent of ink on paper. And some darn strong coffee.

Add them up and you get Lundwall Communications, a custom publishing company with deep experience in the cable telecommunications sector.

From richly detailed books (like the one you're reading now) to targeted magazines, the team at Lundwall Communications produces reader-engaging, richly designed, provocative and original publications. Over the past few years we've been privileged to produce targeted business publications for clients including some of the biggest names in cable programming, marketing, technology and system operations.

We do newsletters. We do books. We do magazines. We do editorial, design, printing, circulation management, the whole publishing enchilada. Got a yen to reach an audience that matters? Give us a ring. We'll help you turn a new page in your business.

Where cable meets print.

We're Lundwall Communications. We know magazines, we know the cable broadband industry and we've been serving industry operators, programmers and vendors for more than 15 years.

Today, we produce custom publications for MSOs, cable networks and even a well-regarded trade association or two.

We combine a flair for great magazine design with turnkey solutions built for pain-free publishing. From targeting and segmenting audiences to complete magazine and book production, we do it all. That means highly inventive graphic design. Buttoned-down, mistake-free production and distribution. Backend systems that tie it all together. We're the publishing experts. So you don't have to be.
